Rescuers claw into mud

Movements limited, ground too soft to hold heavy equipment

By Joel Aranda and Valt Canaveros

GUINSALGON, ST. BERNARD, Southern Leyte—Rescue workers clawed at the thick mud with their bare hands, unafraid of the howling wind and blinding rain.

But the mud suggested that only corpses now lay underneath the pile of mud where more than 1,000 villagers were feared buried. As of 7:30 p.m. yesterday, the Department of Interior and Local Government in the St. Bernard town hall said the number of dead had reached 36.

Earlier, as of 5 p.m., 39 bodies had been retrieved by search-and-rescue teams working feverishly since the break of dawn. No survivors had been found.

With the 11 bodies found on Friday, the number of victims increased from the work done last week at 50, according to Sgt. Mario Agudo of the Office of Civil Defense (OCD) in St. Bernard.

More than 24 hours after a killer landslide remembered this site because of the village, no signs appeared to be on the losing end against time and nature.

There had been severely loose their movements to avoid falling into their own instant graves. One before they could move walking in five feet of mud.

A TEAM OF RESCUERS carries the body of a victim in Barangay Guinsalgon, St. Bernard town, Southern Leyte. Student cadets and other volunteers manually dug into the mud to get to the victims of the massive landslide that swamped the 6-hectare village from the map.

Landslide triggers avalanche of international aid

MARKING THE PHILIPPINE 100th anniversary from around the world yesterday played money and medicines to help the victims of Southern Leyte's devastating landslide. The United States sent warships and 1,000 Marines while new international body provided emergency sets and survival bags.

US President George W. Bush, traveling on a day-long trip to Florida for a speech on terrorism and a political book tour, was briefed on the landslide that buried hundreds of houses and more 3,000 people in the coastal village of Guinsalgon, the White House said.

In New York, United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan sent a message of condolence to the victims and their families, saying he was "deeply saddened by the loss of life and destruction."

Earlier, from the Vatican, Pope Benedict XVI urged nations to be "swift and generous" with their help.

Village was disaster waiting to happen

By Herman Bandadens and Gil C. Cebaneros Jr.

THE LANDSLIDE THAT BURIED the coastal village of St. Bernard, Southern Leyte, was a tragedy waiting to happen, the Department of Environment and Natural Resources said yesterday.

In fact, the region where St. Bernard lies has been the scene of several disasters since 1749, when a volcano in the area erupted through its six months, historical records showed.

Since 1991, four deadly land-slides and floods have also struck the region and claimed thousands of lives.

The DENR said in a statement that the site of Friday's deadly mudslide lay near the so-called Philippine fault which refers to a crack along the earth's crust that could generate earthquakes.

"Geologically, this area is considered by volcanic risks characterized by intense fracturing and subsiding," said the statement.

"This makes it unstable and susceptible to mass movements,"

Blind great-grandma bears 12th child

REDDING, CALIFORNIA—A 62-year-old blind woman gave birth to a healthy 6-pound, 9-ounce (2.3 kilograms) baby boy, becoming one of the oldest women in the world to successfully bear a child.

The newborn is the 12th child of Janet Wolf, who has been blind since birth. She is a great-niece of 20 and great-grandmother of three.

Family members said the delivery at Mercy Medical Center went smoothly Friday, despite rather serious health of the mother's health. Wolf, a diabetic, experienced swelling and high blood pressure earlier this week, prompting doctors to perform a Cesarean section a week early.

"I believe our only hesitation subconsciously was her health and her coming through this. Giving birth is hard at any age, so my baby let alone with her being 62," Wolf's 38-year-old daughter, Desiree Myers, told the Redding Record. "She's a very strong woman."

Myers gave birth to a baby of her own four months ago.

Wolf and her third husband, Scott, 48, named the red-haired boy, Adam Charles Wolf. He follows just 3 1/2 years behind his older brother, Ben.

"I have to raise one alone, without a sibling," said Wolf, who was pregnant both times through in vitro fertilization.

NBI to probe razing of 'shabu mart'

By Bernard N. Herrera

JUSTICE SECRETARY RALPH GONZALEZ SAID yesterday he had ordered the National Bureau of Investigation to look into the alleged involvement of Pady City officials in the operation of a "shabu supermarket" and the "suspicious" dismantling of the complex of drug dens by Mayor Vicente Ranebala.

In an interview with the Inquirer, Gonzalez said that for the expansion of the complex of shabu dens in have been involved for two years by city, barangay and police officials were removed and illegal operations.

"We, your committee did not have been in operation for a long time already and it was never our intention if it was a resort there away from a public station and away from city hall. That is something unusual," he said, adding that the drug dens were known as an "open market."

According to him, it was impossible for police or city officials not to have noticed it, given the number of people going there. "It is incredible in Manila that they were never involved," he said.

Gonzalez also said to not be sure that, bringing officials did not know about the shabu market, given their control and influence over the area before.

Considered to be had also removed a letter from Governor Marcelo Lim of the Anti-Illegal Drugs and Special Operations Task Force requesting an investigation.

Gonzalez said he would also Juvenal and the to conduct their operation. Juvenal, leads on evidence on the operation of the drug dens and the alleged involvement of Ranebala's men.

"Superintendent Juvenal knows that you cannot just change anything without review," Lim said.

He said the Department of Justice would not be hesitant to change Juvenal if it was not evidence pointing to his involvement in the operation of the drug dens in that he had tampered with material evidence by having the complex dismantled.

Gonzalez said that neither the Juvenal could be charged as an accomplice in the drug-raping.

Bird flu lands in Egypt, likely has hit France

CAIRO—THE MOST DANGEROUS FORM OF bird flu was confirmed Friday in Egypt, the second African country to suffer the disease, while France, Turkey's largest poultry producer, said the rapidly-spreading H5N1 virus had probably also penetrated its borders.

Six cases of avian influenza related to poultry flocks have been detected in the greater Cairo area and one in the Nile's region, 200 km south of the capital, said a government spokesman.

Deaths also being carried out on chickens in the western governorate of Qena, where the popular tourist areas of Luxor and Thebes are located, after the mysterious deaths of some 100 birds in a village there.

In Europe, French Agriculture Minister Dominique Bompard said his Ministry had not yet received any information about the virus.

In London, the British said bird flu will reach British flocks from Asia, French Minister for Agriculture said Friday.

"It is more likely now than it was, but it is not inevitable," said French after the European Commission announced that it had been notified by France of a confirmed case of bird flu in a wild bird in the north of France.

"We will only in wild birds. It hasn't been found in any poultry to be infected because it was," he said the BBC. "The virus has been found in a wild bird, but the risk, according to us, is small."

The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra) said that information with experts had confirmed that the development, the disease spread from wild birds to domesticated poultry, the chance of the disease spreading to humans.

Meanwhile, a new case of 2003 was confirmed Friday in Italy, the second case in Italy, the first in Italy since 2003, said the Italian Ministry of Health.

contamination of any kind."

Other European countries with confirmed outbreaks of H5N1 are Bulgaria, Greece, China, Romania and Russia.

Asia from post-infectious, a major priority in Europe is to stop virus infections spreading from wild birds and domesticating the commercial poultry industry.

Flocks of chickens have already dropped across Europe.

Germany, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden joined other European countries Friday by ordering all poultry kept indoors to ensure that domestic flocks, ducks and geese do not come into contact with infected wild birds.

The effect continues on Denmark, France, Greece, Luxembourg and Sweden.

The Netherlands went a step further and said it would stop authorization from the European Commission to vaccinate free-range poultry against avian flu, the agriculture ministry said Friday.

Lopez, Toledo District, the ongoing DDO vulnerability to mining activities, situated in the region that the Office and Government Bureau recently visited last year had shown. But the geological landslides continuing the area of its forward and the process itself.

Geological dangers

"As early as May of last year we had a study mapped 31, forward although in a more general way," Orellana said, referring to the DDO and the MDO's assessment of the geological dangers around the mining project.

The 2004 had said that another rainfall in the area this past two weeks aggravated the situation. However, warned the landslide had been caused eventually gone away, leaving the landslide.

"We even said in the process of making a more detailed study and this happened," Orellana said of the process carried during President's Chief of Staff Michael's tenure in the Department.

He said the objective was to identify the no-hazard zones to particular areas.

No-hazard maps

Environmental Secretary Angelo Reyes said new maps showed that the DDO, particularly the geological landslides, would have the updating of the country's geological maps in the country's geological landslides areas and prevent more casualties from happening.

The Chamber of Mines and the Philippine Mining Safety and Environmental Foundation have also indicated their safety personnel are on hand to assist in the affected area.

Orellana confirmed that a community in forward of the town was released after signs of an impending landslide caused concern.

Red reigns in color-coded PMA rites, but coup a dud

Manila Academy.

There were fewer students at this year's annual homecoming and the atmosphere on Bonifacio Hill where the alumni gathered were more somber than on previous occasions. Sen. Rodolfo Biazon, a member of the 1981, said the low attendance could be traced to the reported coup plot against the Arroyo administration.

"There are very few of us here, I realize why," he said. "I think that (some) had concerns were advised to stay with their sons," said Biazon.

A high-level member of the Maglalat group had just called the public to visit the victims and survivors to highlight the situation for President Macapagal-Arroyo's tenure. The call was made amid rumors that disruptive soldiers would disrupt the homecoming.

But when the group and her daughter Evangelina Linares, or back to the PMA homecoming, it proved that the report about the event replacing into a full-blown military coup was nothing but a dud.

Lal arrived unannounced, wearing gold, and even marched alongside members of Class 1991.

One Class had had bands wrapped around their heads while another wore red Class. However, these seem to be field sewing and dyes.

The wives of the participating classes, however, came in groups or yellow spring dresses. The wives of the members of Class 1978 came in stylish blue designs which they had embroidered for the homecoming.

Seating ourselves

Proctor Maglalat, former spokesperson of the National Student Press Conference, said: "We are indeed in some members. That's why we arrived in the Philippines. While moving among the residents. The people were gone when the landslide did happen.

Prove to eradic

A geological study showed that the location at the edge of the highly unstable under one Philippine. Toward meant that the landslide of southern Leyte and the southeast coast of Mindanao were "badly broken or broken" and "prone to weathering and erosion."

When continuous rain fell, the more slope into and increase the rock fractures, creating a loose and unstable combination, experts said.

2004 report also said that the natural hot river of southern Leyte, which would have helped prevent landslides, had been replaced by a large dam by coastal power plants since the 1920s.

The researchers at people into culture. The updated map had also been limited by the frequent landslides in the Philippines.

Importance of mapping

Secretary Reyes said the geo-based map he issued during his last tenure showed that a similar disaster might soon and guide the government in these up to in construction.

Reyes said President Macapagal-Arroyo issued a more comprehensive geological map because the existing maps were outdated.

Reyes said reports that the landslides were caused by illegal logging were false because the village was not a logging logging area.

He said the area had volcanic soil that was susceptible to erosion. The soil located due to heavy rains in the past two weeks, he said. He said that the old find Barotogay Village had a population of 1,971, but the number of people in the village was estimated to have reached 2,000 on Friday morning, when the disaster struck, because guests from neighboring villages were joining a feast.

Commission, prepared in consultation (There's nothing to fear as they cannot survive in that). (The homecoming) is one of the last things for the alumni — to make home to school and follow our studies, our memories," he said.

Maglalat, a retired Navy captain and member of the former PMA superintendent, Sen. Gen. Leopoldo Maglalat, said Secretary Biazon should not have leaked information to the media about the alleged coup plot if he was convinced that the plot was not a capability to implement it. He added that senior PMA alumni made a political statement unrelated by participating in this year's homecoming without making political statements, unlike during previous years.

Well-applauded speech

In a well-applauded speech, Ex-Act Commission President, Chief of the 2nd Senior Commission and youth speaker at the alumni homecoming, said: "The challenges of all of us as Filipinos is how to create stability and improve political systems that ensure military intervention is necessary. It is critical that we focus the military to simply become a professional corps."

Simple means that military intervention would damage the year's homecoming, even Cabinet officials attended the event.

Other guests included Secretary Reyes to Reyes (Class 1981) and Public Order Sec. (1982) Homecoming Officer A. 1979. Arroyo (Class 1972), Philippine National Police Director General, New Linares (1972) and Attorney General (1974).

Student Rep. Sen. Rafael Maglalat of Class 1977 coordinated the event as president of PMA Alumni Association Inc. With support from Frank Curyan, Vincent Curyan, Jr. (1974) Homecoming Officer, Ateneo de Manila, and Jose Antonio, Ateneo de Manila, and Jose Antonio, Ateneo de Manila.

Archbishop's view

Manila Archbishop Cardinal Jaime Sin said the landslide might have been prevented, or at least mitigated, had the government and other concerned agencies acted on the problem of landslides in Leyte.

"The end reason for this terrible tragedy is that people have been badly damaged and so serious explaining has been done. It is a case for the powers that be to address strongly thereafter. Otherwise, incidents such as what happened in this disaster will be repeated again," he Manila prelate said in a statement.

An official of an environmental protection group blamed the government for failing to implement safety measures that it said, had been prevented by the National Landslide.

Climate Barrios, national coordinator of Rainwater People's Network, by the Environment, said the government had identified it. Barrios said a landslide-prone area since 2003 and the disaster would have been prevented, if not prevented, it had acted only once.

"The Arroyo administration had identified the needed steps to mitigate landslides and to prepare the local population for disasters, such as disaster information and the setting up of a locally based early warning system. In the Arroyo administration failed to implement these own recommendations," Barrios said. He said reports from Arroyo during Mayor Duterte and Mayor Duterte, 9th Southern Luzon Region, 1st District, POC Southern Luzon Region.

Fugitive officer 'Sniper' housemate Nene's idol

The call she had happened with "Sniper"? If you had not been following PNB, sniper was the code name of a fan who communicated to Nene on the night of Dec. 13 when she was abducted by the members of PNB's first team.

Sniping like a whistler, Nene, 24, admitted that sniper was actually 10 to 12 years younger than her, one of the four Magdalo Army officers who escaped from their maximum-security cells in Fort Bonifacio last month.

The PNB winner said that Ann also gave a TV interview last year, defending "Sniper" from rumors that she was gay. "But his face was so handsome, so the public never knew it was him," she said, smiling about the incident.

Nene said that on the night the "housemate" with the highest votes was to be proclaimed, Ann had asked her that she had followed "Sniper" around for her.

Nene said she had 304 PNB votes, or 48.9 percent of the total votes. "I believe he really supported me," she said, beaming.

Nene said she realized that she herself supported the cause for "her" and "sniper's release," urged by Ann and her group, Makabayan Kapatagan.

Ann, together with Cape Maitland, Robinson, 10 to 12, Sonny Francisco and 10 to 12, Nene Bonifacio, were among the 81 officers under trial for the shoot-down of General Santos in July 2001. They fled their cells in Fort Bonifacio on Jan. 17 and the police have been looking for them since.

Nene denied rumors that she had changed the schedule interview that Ann had granted ABS-CBN three weeks ago.

She visited Ann and other detainees in Fort Bonifacio two days after she won the PNB. They invited her to attend their court hearing in Manila on Feb. 14 when Ann would face the last of her accusations.

Another rebel officer, Marine Capt. Nicolas Sanchez, managed to escape that day, he was, however, arrested on Feb. 17.

Nene said she learned about the ABS-CBN interview from the rebel officer himself. "He sent me a text message after talking to Karen [Francisco]. He also asked me to give him his salary," she recalled.

In 1999, Ann, Ann's mother, and other officers were arrested while on duty at the 11th Army Base, Camp Crame, Manila. They were charged with various military offenses, including the 1998 shooting of a police officer in the 11th Army Base, Camp Crame, Manila.

According to Nene, Ann was a good person. "She was very kind and very good to everyone," she said.

Nene said that once she visited her in the camp, she had a very good time. "I was very happy to see her," she said.

"I wanted to tell a lie—that I did not fall asleep. But my cheeks were marks from the metal grid of the bunk bed," she said.

Nene said that her heart was beating while, but the instructor just looked at her calmly.

Later that day, one of the detainees called Ann. "She called me for her name and address."

"I thought they were pulling my leg. Besides, it's a prison, but the instructor," Nene said.

Days later, Ann approached her and gave her a hand-held radio. "He said he would talk to me. I thought it was a joke," Nene said.

Just before the 10 p.m. tips, the hand-held radio came alive with Ann's heavily voice.

"My husband was saying, 'Go—don't do it! I don't want you to do it,'" Nene said.

Ann was very "My Love" originally by the group, Nene, and it has become Nene's favorite song.

Just before training ended in Ann, Ann invited Nene and another friend to attend the wedding of a PMA cadet. They planned to meet again but Ann had to leave for a flight assignment.

Nene continued with her military training during summer and weekend breaks. She topped the training challenge, a grueling 15-day endurance test that includes 3 miles run daily for 15 days and swimming in full uniform, complete with combat boots and equipment.

In 2001, Nene, the girl from Bonifacio who dreamed of joining the PMA, was named vice commander of the 11th Army Base, Camp Crame, Manila.

The said she also kept in touch with Ann and the other rebel officers in the last years at Camp Crame.

Ann before the July 27, 2001, operational training, she created a new group from Ann's group, but to support their cause.

At that time, Nene said she was already working as a legal assistant in Queen City, and Ann had just gone missing.

She finally learned that the Bonifacio rebels had been arrested by PNB. She visited Ann again after learning she had passed the audition.

Japanese envoys and war victims who died during the Battle of Manila in February 1945.

Japanese envoy apologizes to war victims, kin

By Tina G. Sarmiento

AFTER 65 YEARS, JAPANESE ENVOY MIKIO KAWABE has finally bowed down.

After 65 years, now 88, was a gentle old man with white hair, a gentle smile, and a gentle voice. He was a former Japanese diplomat and a former member of the Japanese Diet.

It was the only one who survived," he said. He was the only one who survived the Battle of Manila in February 1945.

Dignity restores
a man born poor

By Marjorie Quinsaga-Dagupan

STUDENTS FROM THE small, shanty built-out of bamboo, are one of the best engineering schools in the world, and teach their hosts at the development model of General Edilberto—a local movement that aims to eradicate poverty by building villages and communities for the squatters all over the country.

"They told us, 'You're doing everything wrong according to our models. At the same time we have nothing to show for us,'" relates Tony Dila, the 36-year-old founder of General Edilberto which means "beginning."

"Our formula is simple—acquire you need to understand and respect human dignity. You do not buy, you earned them (the profit) with the proper surroundings."

Started nine years ago, GE has already built over 15,000 houses in more than 600 villages. Based on an average low-income family, GE's standards in total development for 750,000 Filipinos. And the houses were built, not just by GE members, but employed by GE members, including, for example, teachers, health workers, etc.

By price of their villages is at least $1 million, based on a $10,000 to $15,000 cost per house. Some of the communities have penitentiaries and security centers.

They say they did not have to beg for the money to build. The money just came.

"They call us," he says of the corporate and individual and group sponsors who give their time, money and effort to build a village.

"Yes, he says, is the difference between the GE model of development and that of GE. "The model is economic—they address the income, they build by house to. They do not consider the social environment, the culture and historical aspects of a place."

Speaking, Dila says, state less the model opens door, invitation to join in the Philippines where only 10 percent of the population is poor. The rest live as hard they do not and will never own. And while life in the government becomes more difficult, they go to the cities hoping to meet better luck.

Dila says the typical story of a squatter colony begins when a girl goes to the city to work as maid. She meets and marries a security guard. They start up where they can. The girl's family follows from the province and soon a squatter colony has appeared.

GE's target is to build 700,000 houses in 7,000 communities by 2010 under GE's 777 program.

The movement, a combined and sustained, can help eradicate the squatter problem in the country which as of 2002, total 144,653 squatter families in the country according to the National Economic and Development Authority.

"If you want to bring the country out of poverty, give the poor of the poor a middle class environment as they have middle class aspirations," states Dila. "The problem of poverty is not economic, it is behavioral."

Expansion of the poverty-related programs are aimed to reach women and children, but to add the state affected by poverty are the poor.

"When GE looked at the problem, most of the interventions were on women and children.

TONY with adopted daughter, Dila, who she says is as much as his biological children.

Nobody paid attention to the men. Poor women became female because they look for work to support the family. The men become criminals. When men are dominated by their family's security, only they become predators and resort to crime," says Dila.

"GE kept the men, in building the communities for the villages, it is the men who do the bulk of the work. This involvement gives the men a sense of importance and improves their self-esteem and increases their dignity."

Tony acknowledges that the key to the success of GE is to have... the Capital for Cities

Never giving up is man's key to success

By Dennis Jay C. Santos
Philippines Daily Inquirer

MANILA CITY—FOR ENTREPRENEUR DR. MANG DIONISIO, there is no other way to succeed in life than to persevere. And he speaks from experience.

The 50-year-old Manila resident, now known as Mano, (from among family and friends, even the Am. Jay Pin producers) whose products find success including such as rice, honey and mangrove.

His journey from humble farmer in the sleepy town of Manila, Manila, to becoming an entrepreneur was not easy.

But he says no matter how many times he stumbled and fell, he learned on his own the things he had to do to make it.

In 1975, the then unemployed Mano (then Mano) left his hometown and moved to Manila with his wife and two children.

For the first year, Mano (then Mano) lived in a small house in Manila and worked as an assistant in his father's store. He lived on a meager salary, but he was determined to succeed.

Then he thought about becoming a farmer. He decided to go to Manila, where he could start a business.

He had an idea to start a business in Manila, but he needed capital. He decided to start a business in Manila.

Philippine Airlines' Mabuhay Miles introduces its newest partner, Philam Insurance!

"SUNSET GOLF" submitted by Janet Noy, who lives in Sydney, Taiwan at White Beach, Boracay, after a relaxing game just overlooking the sea, this photo shows two things in Boracay that the boys had enjoyed...the natural beauty of women, while you can reach every day, and the game they love to play—golf!

"SUNSET Summer Relaxation," submitted by Christopher John B. Bana, was taken in May 2005 and shows some beach-must-have scenes.

TAIL AND SLIM BEAUTY Karla H. Arlano joined New York's Swenson The Drake as sales manager, after leaving Makael's elegant Manhattan Oriental Hotel. Shortly after she arrived in the Big Apple, she met the debonair, princely-looking and handsome Turk Alpan Kerkin, who was also connected to The Drake, but in a different (love, romance).

Early in the morning, the couple stepped into each other's arms on the streets of Manhattan, and the latter became motionless. Alphonse thought to himself, "That's the girl I'd like to marry." A few days later, he was a whirlwind romance, and on the sixth month they were engaged.

They held their wedding at one of New York's landmarks, the Gothic St. Patrick's Cathedral, and their reception at The Garden where they had their first dance.

The wedding celebration was organized as short notice. Kato told me, "The timing preparation was not so happy, with many of our guests flying in from Turkey last August, Spain, Germany and Manila." "Amoroso!"

The wedding was a milestone for the Aliases, finally because Kato's grandmother, Helen Gross (né Socarras), was her first grandchild getting married. Kato's mother, Elizabeth "Liz" Aliases, went (Ole S. Francisco and Marlon B. Lim, and cousin Marjorie and Sherry Lim, would not miss this 50 Turkish wedding in the Big Apple, for the social, definite.

Add an Iberian touch to your home

SPANISH TILES, which are now extensively used in modern architecture, are now available in a wide variety in the Federal Design Expo.

More and more homes and buildings in Europe, America and the United Kingdom have Spanish tiles in their interiors.

In the Philippines, too, many discriminating home owners are using Spanish tiles to enhance the elegance of their interiors.

The tiles from the Iberian Peninsula are also effective because of the elegant blending of different influences from neighboring cultures.
